BURGLARS NEEDN'T APPLY.

ISLIP'S SUMMER COTTAGES FURNISH SLIM PICKINGS FOR THEM

With Their Solid Silver Safely Locked Up. the Cottagers Regard with Equanimity the Visits of Marauders, Who Find Only Pinted Ware and Disappointment. ISLIP, L. I., Aug. 16.-The summer residences nodore Alden B. Swan, Spenger Jennings of Commodore Alden B. Bwan, Spenger Jenning and John Gibb, in this village, were visited by a burgiar last night. In each instance the burglar got in by forcing open a lower story window, and the conditions of the lower floors of the three houses indicated that cons time had been spent in each place in the search for valuables. The silverware was tested with acid, but only disappointment met the burglar's efforts. Islip houses have been robbed before this season opened and the residents are profiting by former experiences. Selid silverware is now kept in strong vaults and the plated ware is left out for the burglars. It was this foresight that made the losses from last night's burgiaries insignificant.

It is not known which house was entered first, and as there is no jealousy over that question the local detectives have not at-tempted to determine whether the footprints in Commodore Swan's garden are fresher than those on Mr. Gibb's lawn or whether those in Mr. Jennings's front gard were made ahead of those in the other two places. The burglar worked with considerable determination, and evidently knew his business better than he did the habits of the summer ony here. When Mr. Swan arose this morning and looked for his trousers they were on the floor of his bedroom. He at first thought that he had been playing a joke on him-self in his sleep, but when he noticed that the pockets of all his clothes were turned inside out, and that a small amount of change had disappeared, he whistled softly to himself, and diagnosed the case as burglars The lower floor of the house bore out this hypothesis. Articles had been moved from their accustomed places in order that they their accustomed blaces in order that they could be inspected as to their value. Some small pieces of solid silverware were missing. Pieces of plated ware bore evidence of acid tests and ill usage. The burglar vented his disappointment by scratching a pair of valuable field glasses, and one or two minor articles disappointment by scratching a pair of valuable field glasses, and one or two minor articles were missing.

While the Swan family were investigating, they were informed of the other burgiaries. At Mr. Gibb's house the burgiar confined his investigations to the lower floor. He made the same stracks upon the polished silverware as at Commodore Swan's, and satisfied his desire for gain by decamping with several small pieces of solid silverware, two golf prize cups, and a box of cigars. At Mr. Jennings's house considerable property of value was found packed up ready for removal. The silverware also showed the effect of acid tests and ill usage, and there was other evidence of the disappointment of the burgiar.

Everybody in Islip agrees that all three burglaries were the work of one man. Some think that a gang was present and that while one entered the houses the others kept watch. There is a hired watchman here, but the thievenmust have timed him on his rounds, for he did not look suspicious. A countryman residing in the village is reported to have seen a young man lying in the grass on the roadside, but did not disturb him, knowing that nothing of value could be found in the homes of the summer colonists. The local detectives are going to take photographs and measurements of the grass and look for some one to fit the indentation.

could be found in the homes of the summer colonists. The local detectives are going to take photographs and measurements of the spot where the young man was lying in the grass and lock for some one to fit the indentation.

Commodore Swan, when asked about the burglary, expressed considerable sympathy for the burglar. He said it was a real shams that an enterprising burglar should get so little reward after paying his fare to islip on the Long Island Railroad and expending the best part of the night in search of plunder. Hr. Gibb and he hoped that the details of the burglaries would get into the newspapers and prove a warning to all burglars who had any regard for their profession, as it was pretty near time that burglars realized that residents of Islip do not take their valuables into the country, but put them in strong safe deposit vaults in the city. Mr. Gibb was sorry for the disappointment the burglar must have felt.

There are other sympathetic residents here. Mr. Zimmerman, who lives on the main road, heard some one prowling about his house during the night, but did not make an investigation. At first he thought he would get up and go and tell the burglar how foolish he was to break into Islip's summer homealooking for plunder, but changed his mind and turned over and went to sleep again. A guest at Mr. W. M. Van Anden's also heard the burglar was king out in the garden, but no alarm was given, as there was nothing that the thief could get away with without a four-horse truck to aid him. Other residents heard the thief, but did not make an effort to capture him. It is said to-night that the burglar's reward was so poor that a number of residents will commine and offer a reward of $1.000 for the capture of the burglar, with the proviso that in the event of his capture he will consent to being placed on exhibition in the village hall. It was estimated that the total loss from the three burglaries would not exceed $100.

LAWYER LONDON'S FIRST CASE. In Consideration Thereof His Clients Were

Twenty men and women employed in the tailor shop of Jacob Kramer, at 264 Broome street, did not go out on the recent annual strike of east side garment makers. A crowd of strikers marched into Kramer's shop without his permission yesterday and laid before his workmen and workwomen, for signature applications for admission to the union. Kramer attempted to eject the intruders, and there was a free fight, in which flatirons, shears, and sticks went flying through the air and whiskers sticks went nying through the air and where damaged.

The screams of the women workers attracted Detective Young of the Eidridge street station, who summoned the patrol wagon and a squad of reserves. Thirteen of the strikers were arrested and taken to the Essex Market Court.

M. London, a young lawyer who appeared for the strikers, said to Magistrate Wentworth:

Your Honor, this is my first case, and I hope you will deal leniently with my clients.

After hearing the evidence the Magistrate said:

and:
"Mr. London, I fine your elients $5 each. I would have fined them $10 each, but as this is your first case I will make it only $5."
The prisoners were unable to pay the fines and were looked up.

More Clonkmakers Go on Strike.

About 1,500 cloakmakers employed by the following firms were ordered out yesterday by the Cloakmakers' Union to enforce a new agreement: Freedman Brothers, Katzinger & Zeten ko, 121 Prince street: Stern & Adler, 691 Broadway; Blauner Brothers & Co., 126 Green street; Benjamin Levy, 115 Spring street; S. Kingsberg & Co., 54 West Third street, and Ringsperg & Co., ba West Third street, and Rieger & Feldman. The United Brotherhood of Tailors says it will not order a general strike at present. The union is disorganized, but meetings will be held next week, and a general strike may be ordered at the end of this month.

RUSSELL SAGE CHEERED.

He Gave Full Use of His Railroad to an Excursion for Poor Children. POUGHEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 16.-Fully 500 poor children cheered lustily for Russell Sage in this city to-night. They had just returned from a free excursion over Mr. Sage's railroad to Upton Lake Park, a pleasure resort on the Poughkeepsie and Eastern Railroad. Mr. Sage gave the free use of a train of eight coaches and the park and sent word to Charles H. Madison, Superintendent of the mission, to invite all the walls in the city. The little ones had the free use of all the swings and merry-go-rounds at the park, and farmers sent cans of milk for them to drink.

official of the Canadian Government writing home, says it is the richest strike in the North, far surpassing the Klondike. There is gold from grass roots to bed rock five feet down, running from $2 to $6 to the pan. Eight thousand people have put up tents.

J. Kelly, a druggist, wrote to his partner a Skagway that Pike Creek is the richest diggings "Come quick," he said. There in the world. are two creeks running parallel with Pike that are said to be just as rich.

OGILVIE HAS FAITH.

He Believes the Klendike Will Be the Greatest Gold Country in the World. VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 16 .- Mr. Ogilvie, the new administrator of the Klondike, at a fare-well banquet tendered by the St. Andrew's Soelety to-night, said:

"In the Yukon country I will do my duty to the Queen and Canada as I did before." He continued that he had no temptation to make anything for himself. The excitement had passed over him like water over a duck's back. passed over him like water over a duck's back. He would do justies to all men irrespective of what country they came from. In the Yukon country, colors of gold are found everywhere. Half the country will pay anyway when labor is cheap. Thawing would be done by electricity. The wealth of the Riondike had not been exaggerated. A vast quantity of mother lode will yet be found. In the next ten years the Riondike will prove the greatest gold area in the world. They must husband all the timber. Americans would no longer be permitted to cut it on British soil or float it down the river. "What we have we will keep."

STER FOR DIFORCE AND DAWAGES Domestic Affairs of Arthur E. C. King of Brooklyn to Come Into Court.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Aug. 16.-A squadal has attracted attention at Walden, twelve miles back of this city, the principal figures being Mrs. Arthur E. C. King of 271 Stuyyesant evenue, Brooklyn, the young wife of a Wall street broker, and John Merrihew of Wallkill, an inspector with Borden's New York Condensed Milk Company, whose principal plant is at that place. Merrihow is married, with rrown-up children. Mrs. King was formerly Edith Conkling, said to have been an actress before marriage and about 23 years old. Mr King is about 30 years old. His father is Gilpert King, a Union veteran with one arm gone. formerly an Orange county man but for several years also a resident of Brooklyn. The rouble is over the alleged infatuation of Mrs.

formerly an Orange county man but for several years also a resident of Brooklyn. The trouble is over the alleged infatuation of Mrs. King for Merrihew. It has led not only to a separation of the Kings, but to a suit for divorce, another suit for $20,000 against Merrihew for alleged allenation of the affections of Mrs. King, as well as a threatened suit against certain persons charged with abducting the 4-year-old daughter of the Kings.

The suits for divorce and damages have been brought in New York city. for Mr. King by A. M. Evans. a New York lawyer, formerly a partner of Mayor Van Wyck, and the papers have been served upon Mrs. King at her mother's home in Madison avenue, New York. The Kings have been married five years. They have been in the habit of spending their summers at the house of Stephen Rapalye, about two miles north of Walden, near the condensed milk company's plant, where Merrihew is employed. Merrihew lives in a cottage opposite the Beformed Church in Wall-kill with his wife and 18-year-old daughter. The allegations are that Merrihew and Mrs. King hought up from Brooklyn for his wife's use. It is also charged that Mr. King can prove by a woman detective that Merrihew and Mrs. King stopped one night at a hotel in Rhinebeck, registering there as Mr. and Mrs. John Deyo.

On Tuesday has a brother of Mr. King appeared at Wallkill and served Merrihew with papers in the suits. Just before this Mrs. King house near Walden. On Friday last Mr. Rapalye has a sister of Mr. King, at another boarding house near Walden. On Friday last Mr. Rapalye was in the house Mrs. King and her sister appeared with a Walden liveryman and the little girl was taken away by her mother and after spending some hours in Walden with her lawyer. E. B. Walker, started, it is supposed, for New York. This is believed to be the ground for the suit has bout the case.

Miss Ring, the sister of the broker, said that her house Mrs. King spent last Sunday at the Rapalye house. Neither Merrihew nor Mrs. King she would have no more to do wit

SUICIDE OF TWO GIRLS FROM

PHILADELPHIA FERBYBOAT.

They Were Unfit for This World—Smiled and Chatted as They Wrote It—The Struggle of One of Them to Save Her 14fe PRILADELPRIA, Aug. 16.-Two girls entered the ferryhouse of the Reading Railway about i 'clock this morning and sat down in the wait ing room. People came and went and still the two girls sat there. Every time William Steele a ticket collector, opened the big glass doors to let the waiting crowds aboard a boat he glanced summer wash goods dresses. At times they smiled and talked together, bu again they would become so grave that the colector was puzzled. One of the girls wore a pink dress and the other a gown of brownish hue. The one in pink took several sheets of paper a pencil from her pocketbook, and while the other looked over her shoulder, wrote for some time. As she wrote she occasionally glanced When the writer ceased she passed the paper to the girl in brown, who took the pencil and hurriedly wrote a line at the bottom of the paper. All this Steele noted. As the bell rung for the City of Beading to leave for her 10:15 o'clock trip for Kaighn's Point avenue, the girls got up and went aboard. When the boat approached the slip at Camden a deckhand went aft and opened the safety gates to clamp the rudder. As he stooped over and took hold of the ring in the rudder he heard some one say: "Come on, Bess, here's our chance; let's go now," and something flashed by him. Then he saw the two girls fall into the water hand in hand. Presently two pale faces came up above the surface of the river. The swiftrunning tide carried the two white faces up past the end of Chestnut street wharf, and the past the end of Chestnut street wharf, and the man lost sight of them. Efforts were made at once to save them.

One, the girl in the pink dress, could swim, and from the river front it was seen that she was trying to keep aflost. The ferryboat Beverly passed near her, and, beating the water with her hands, she screamed out to Capt. Somers.

"For God's sake, save me!"

But he was unable to get near enough to her to help. Opposite Market street she threw up her hands and went down. The other girl had made no such struggle for life, but had sunk long before her companion astrength gave out. The bodles were not recovered.

Upon the rail of the ferryboat were found two pocketbooks, and in them were the note the girls had written and some small change. The note was signed "Maud and Bessie" and read as follows:

We can but own that life is vain,

We can but own that life is vain,
A desert void of peace.
We missed the goal we sought to gain,
We missed the measure of the strain
That luils the fever of the brain
And bids earth's tumult cease.

Ourselves, alsa! the theme is poor, A theme but rich in fear. We stand erect on life's shore, A spectre not within the door, A houseless shadow evermore, An exile lingering here.

MAUDE AND BREET We find we are utterly unfit for this world, and will

We find we are utterly unfit for this world, and will try another.

There were many clippings from various papers in both pocketbooks. One of them, signed "Miss Beaste, No. 421 Federal street, Camden, N. J." says that the writer was born in the country and was an innocent country girl one year ago. Since then she had lived in the city and had outgrown her country wave and ideas. She was connected with a stringed orchestra of twelve pieces and at home there was a small orchestra of four pieces. Music appealed more strongly to her than did household drudgery, the washing of dishes and making of beds. In addition to the clippings the pocketbooks contained the measurements of the girls, a cigarette each, and a key. Nothing was known of the girls at the address given.

Late to-night G. Faust of 721 Federal street, Camden, recognized the trinkets left on the ferryboat by one of the girls as the property of his sister Bessie, 19 years old. He is positive that she was one of the suicides.

He said that Beas left home last Sunday to pay a visit to Miss Maud Haffingul, an intimate friend at 423 Reed street, Philadelphia, and falled to return home. Faust could give no explanation for his sister's act.

SUICIDE IN HER WEDDING DRESS Mrs. Jantzen, a Bride of Seven Weeks, In-

Mrs. Annie Jantzen of 218 Ralph avenue Williamsburg, committed suicide at her home yesterday afternoon by inhaling illuminating gas. She was married seven weeks ago to John J. Jantzen, who keeps a saloon at Pearl and Beaver streets, in this city. About 5 o'clock Mrs. Jantzen told the servant she could o'clock Mrs. Jantzen told the servant she could go out, telling her to return by 9. When the girl returned the door of the flat was locked.

Frederick Graffin, a brother of Mrs. Jantzen, had a key to Jantzen's spartments. He went back with the servant and opened the door. There was no light inside. Bitting in a chair in the kitchen was Mrs. Jantzen, dressed in her wedding gown. She had placed the tube of a gas stove in her mouth and turned on the gas. She had been dead some time when found. No cause can be learned for the act, except that Frederick Graffin says his sister has been in a nervous state since her marriage.

Edward Leonard, 48 years old, of 45 Morton street, who was employed as night watchman at the Eagle Tube Company's works, First and Greene streets, Jersey City, hanged himself some time during Monday night from a beam in the wagon shed. His body was discovered at 7 A. M. posterday by some of the workmen. Leonard seemed to be in unusually good spirits when he went to work on Monday evening. He was unmarried.

ARSENIC IN THE CANDY.

Pieces as Big as Peas Found in the Box That Caused Two Deaths at Dover.

WILMINOTON, Del., Aug. 16,-One new fact brought out to-day concerning the box of poisoned candy that caused the deaths of Mrs. J. Duning and Mrs. J. D. Deane at Dover is that it was not sent through the mail as merchandisc, but sealed. Letter postage was paid, and four 5-cent stamps and one 2-cent stamp were four 5-cent stamps and one 2-cent stamp were used. This fact may aid the postal authorities in San Francisco in discovering the sender.

Dr. T. R. Wolf, State chemist at Delaware College at Newark. testified before the Coroner's jury to-night that in three pieces of the candy which he examined there were found ten or twelve grains of arsenic. Two or three grains would be sufficient to cause death. Some pieces of arsenic as big as peas were found. The case will be turned over to the State and postal authorities for investigation. That a deliberate attempt to murder was made no one in Dover doubts.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION CALLED.

Committee of Ten Getting Ready to De Business at the Hoffman House. Billiot Danforth, Chairman of the Democrati State Committee, has issued the following for Left Some Poetry and a Note Saying That State Committee, has issued the following for-mal call for the State Convention:

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three delegates and three alternates from each As-sembly district to a State Convention to be hald at Byracuse, Wednesday, Sopt. 28, 1846, at 12 O'clock noon, for the purpose of placing, in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The Committee of Ten which was appointed by the Democratic State Committee in Saratoga on Saturday to do the preliminary work o at the girls. Both were pretty and both wore the campaign did not, as intended, hold a formal meeting in the Hoffman House last night Several of the members of the committee, including Senator McCarren, the Chairman, got together, however, and had an informal talk about the work which they intend to do before the State Committee meets. The committee is not a permanent body, and its life will terminate with the life of the pres ent State Committee on Sept. 27. Its powers, however, are very great, and it will usurp practically all the functions of the Executive Committee of the State Committee. Senator McCarren said last night that the banquet hall on the second floor of the Hoffman House had been set aside for the use of the committee, and that the members would take possession of its as soon as it can be got ready for them. The members of the committee will be on hand every day for the transaction of tusiness. The efforts of the committee will be directed mainity toward strengthening the Democratic organization in the rural counties.

The first step which it will take in this direction will be to call together all the Chairmen of the County Committees outside of New York city and hear reports from them on the condition of the party organization. This meeting will probably take place in the Hoffman House early next week. As soon as the exact condition of affairs is learned means will be adopted to perfect the organization wherever it is deemed to be weak. The committee will also have power to settle all petty local wrangles. ent State Committee on Sept. 27. Its powers

MAYOR M'GUIRE'S VIEWS.

He Seems to Be Facing Both Ways on the Stracuse, N. Y., Aug. 16,—Mayor James K.

McGuire, who is trying to make himself a figure in State politics, would like to have the public and the Democratic leaders forget some of his utterances two years ago at the Buffaio Convention, when he said that David B. Hill was "a dead one," and was hissed for similar references to other Democratic leaders who were not unqualifiedly in favor of free silver. Dur ing that campaign he stumped the State as "the sterling advocate of free silver," but last fall, when he ran for re-election as Mayor of Syracuse, he turned the cold shoulder to President McDonald of the State silverite organization when McDonald called to ask his assistance it organizing the silverites of Onandaga county when McDonaid called to ask his assistance in organizing the silverites of Onandaga county, saying:

"It I identified myself with this movement I would be buried as a candidate for Mayor."

Now the Mayor denies absolutely the things he said about Hill and other leaders which are still fresh in the minds of those who heard him and wants to hedge on the silver question. A series of questions were fired point blank at the Mayor to-day which with his answers are as follows:

"Didn't you declare for free silver at the Buffalc Convention?"

"How do you stand on the money question now ?"
I'm a bimetallist, in favor of the coinage of "I'm a bimetallist, in favor of the coinage of gold and silver."
"Are you in favor of the adoption of silver resolutions at the Syracuse Convention?"
"I favor indorsing the national platform, but I believe the campaign should be made on the isaues presented by the Republican State administration."
"What have you to say in regard to Croker's statement that the candidate for Governor must be a silver man?"
"Mr. Croker is right, perfectly right."
"Why did you object to having the silver issue injected into the local campaign last fall?"
"The questions of municipal Government have nothing to do with national issues."
McGuire terminated the interview by saying:
"But the party in the last National Convention declared for free silver, and that is where we stand."

WISCONSIN REPUBLICANS.

Gov. Scofield and Lafollette Both Claim Majority in the State Convention.

MILWAUEEE, Wis., Aug. 16.-The Republican State Convention which meets here to-mor-row will develop a bitter fight. Gov. Scofield, supported by the machine, wants a renomina tion, and against him is the faction headed by Robert M. Lafollette of Madison, who was up for nomination for Governor two years ago The recent treasury disclosures, showing that State officials and private citizens had been using the State money without authority, have created a feeling against the administration To-day it was developed that the Governor's name was on the "doodle book" in two instances.

Both Scoffeld and Lafollette claim a majority of the delegates on the first bailot, but their estimates are based on the probable action of uninstructed delegates, who hold the key to the situation. Henry C. Payne, the millionaire street railway man who managed McKniney's western campaign, is working for Scoffeld. He was defeated for Postmaster-General because of his affiliation with the party machine and Gov. Scoffeld may have the same experience.

J. C. S. BLACKBURN IN CONTROL. He Will Use Kentucky's Election Machinery to Return Himself to the Senate.

FRANKPORT, Ky., Aug. 16.-The State Election Commissioners, all three being Democrats, elected three County Election Commissioners for each of the 119 counties in Kentucky to day, Ex-Senator J. C. S. Blackburn was here and showed plainly that the whole election machinery will be under his control for the next two years. It will be used to further his candidacy for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Lindsay, who will not be a candidate again.

EASY WIN FOR DOMINION.

OUTSAYLS CHALLENGER IN THE THIRD RACE OF THE SERIES. Brisk Sailing Weather Keeps the Sailors Guessing-American Bont Nearly Swamped in a Blow-Duggan's Knowledge of the Lake Helps the Defender. MONTREAL, Aug. 16.-The third of the series of races for the Seawanhaka Challenge Cup, which took place to-day on Lake St. Louis, was a virtual walk-over for the Canadian "freak," which at the finish had a lead of 8 minutes 16 seconds. The course was similar to Satursailed three times, making a total distance of twelve miles.

There was a good reefing breeze, with a fairly heavy sea, and while the wind lightened slightly on the second round, the Dominion sailed the race with two reefs and the Challenger with one. The weather again favored the Canadian boat, as it enabled her to do her extraordinary windward work, and on every windward leg she made remarkable gains, which were not considerably lessened on the free runs, in which the Challenger has had the advantage.

The Challenger sailed up from the clubhouse to the starting point, while the Dominion was towed up. The fine lines of the American boat, which is a perfect beauty, were much admired by the spectators, and her plucky crew, who under rather unpleasant circumstances, have shown themselves to be true sportsmen, were loudly cheered. When near the starting point shown themselves to be true sportsmen, were loudly cheered. When near the starting point the Dominion cast loose and hoisted sail. There was quite a blow and the Dominion had two reefs in, while the Challenger had three. As the Canadian "freak" careened around the starting line her ugiiness caused general comment. She certainly bore out the description given of her by Duggan himself when he said that she was "as ugly as hades."

The preparatory gun was fired at 12:25:00, and the two boats occupied the interval in jockering around the line. There was very little advantage to be gained on the weather, and as the starting gun was fired at 12:40:00 Crane brought the Challenger across the line, a triffs ahead of the defender, on the starboard tack. Both boats carried a baby jib in addition to the mainsail. Shortly after crossing the line the Challenger shook out a reef and the Dominion followed suit. The Challenger gilded through the water, but the Dominion outpointed her and eat into the wind. After a long tack the Challenger went about and the Dominion had gained a decided lead. The Dominion made for the mark but her first attempt was a failure, and after a short tack she turned it at 1:09:30. The Challenger turned 2 minutes 30 seconds later, also missing the mark at first and having to make a tack.

The Dominion's spinnaker was out in an in-short tack she turned it at 1:09:39. The Chailenger turned 2 minutes 30 seconds later, also missing the mark at first and having to make a tack.

The Dominion's spinnaker was out in an instant and she was on the run home. The Chailenger had trouble with her spinnaker, and it took nearly a minute to right it. When she did get it set she travelled along finely and lessened the defender's lead by 53 seconds on the free run, the Dominion turning the buoy at 1:23:19 and the Challenger I minute 37 seconds later.

On the second round the breeze lightened slightly, but there was quite sufficient air for the boats to keep their reefs in. Duggan's practical knowledge of the lake stood him in good stead on this beat, for, while the Challenger worked up toward the Ottawa Channel, inshore, where there is a strong current. Duggan took an entirely different tack, working the Dominion into dead water. Duggan gained considerably by this tack, and when the two boats went about it was seen that the Dominion had a greator lead than ever. She turned the mark 5 minutes 25 seconds shead of the challenger, at 1:47:52. The defender's actual gain on this beat was 3 minutes 48 seconds.

From this point the race was virtually a procession for the defender. On the second run home the Challenger succeeded in knocking off several seconds, the Dominion turning the buoy at 2:02:04, and the Challenger following 4 minutes 45 45 seconds later.

On the third beat the wind freshened to a blow. While the "freak" seemed to be enjoying it, and skated through the heavy sea, the Challenger was driven inshore and slipped water. She went right over on her beam, and it looked as if she would turn turtle. The weather favored the defender, and she added 4 minutes 35 seconds to her lead on the beat, turning 9 minutes 29 seconds later.

The Challenger reduced this lead by 1 minute 13 seconds on the run home, the Dominion finishing 8 minutes 16 seconds aboad. The Challenger reduced this lead by 1 minute 13 seconds on the run home, the Dominion finishing 8 minut

Start. Finish. Time.

St. Lawrence Sailing Committee meets with the unanimous indorsement of Canadians. In fact, Duggan's decision to sail the 'freak' has evoked considerable sharp criticism. There has been a general desire for a race between the Challenger and the Speculator, owned by the Montreal brokers. The Speculator, which was also designed by Duggan, is a boat of the Challenger's type, and many believe that she should have been the defender. So strong has been this belief than an offer was made to-day to bring about a race. A number of the American visitors agreed to put up $250 for a race between the Challenger and Speculator and the money was promptly covered by Barcisy Stephens. Mr Chard, another prominent Montrealer, agreed to put up $100 toward a cup. Mr. Crane, to whom the proposal was subsequently submitted, said he would personally be very pleased to have a race between the two boats, but it would be impossible to keep his crew here any longer, so that the proposal could not be entertained.

The last word has not been said on the action of the Sailing Committee in choosing the Dominion as the defender. From what can be learned another challenge will not be sent by the Seawanhaka Club unless a thorough revision of the rules is made so that it may be expressly stipulated that boats of the Dominion type shall be barred.

To-morrow's race, which will probably be the final one, will be over a triangular course.

ing won the title by making 48 points out of a poesible 54 on the target of honor. The entry list on this target was the largest the corps has had in its existence. The first red flag was shot by Gustave Thomas, but the fight for the last red flag was an interesting one between Thomas, Earl, Kolb and Vogel. For three hours the struggle was in progress, and neither could gain any advantage over the others. The honors finally went to Kolb, who shot the flag just a few moments before time to stop was announced. Summary:
